The EFS site is run by volunteers. We do our best to have accurate and up-to-date information on the site, but can make no guarantees. Use the site at your own risk, such as verifying the information before traveling 100 miles to a dance.

When you provide information, such as when you fill out a form, you agree to provide accurate information. When that information changes, we request that you inform us so that our information is up-to-date.

Any content shared with us, such as photos, will fall under the site copyright, but members may copy site information for their own personal use.

Do not provide us with any material for display on the site that is copyrighted unless you are authorized to give us permission for its use.

We provide links to other sites as a convenience to our visitors and members. We are generally not connected with those organizations. Please use those sites at your own discretion and in agreement with their terms of use and privacy policies. Please inform us if you learn that our information needs revising.
